

Quietly POWERFUL

Be heard, get ahead and make a difference without feeling fake as a quieter professional woman

In a gentle way, you can shake the world

Mahatma Gandhi

What would it take for you to succeed on your own terms as a quieter professional woman?

It is difficult enough being a professional woman, especially working in male dominated organisations. It is doubly hard when we are naturally more introverted because most workplaces favour extroversion.

Are you a quieter professional woman who contribute a lot or have the potential to but don't get heard, recognised or overlooked? You may be naturally more introverted or just not comfortable with promoting yourself or networking. Alternatively you may have pretended to be an extrovert but feel exhausted or depleted in doing so (Please see Are you 'covering' your quieter self?). You may be a quiet achiever or 'exhausted' achiever. You face what I call the Double Glazed Glass Ceiling.

As a quieter professional myself, I'd like to share some key insights from my successes, mistakes and learnings.

During this event, over a light breakfast we will explore:

- The challenges for quieter professional women in the workplace
- The path to becoming quietly powerful and some tips to get started
- Further opportunities to accelerate the path to becoming quietly powerful

Over 250 women have attended this breakfast since starting in August 2016 so it looks like there are a lot of women who can relate to this challenge! In fact, the most common feedback has been, "I'm glad that I'm not alone".

Join us for a supportive conversation with women from a range of sectors and organisations facing similar challenges.

About Megumi:

Megumi is an author, speaker and facilitator on leadership and culture. Megumi has over 20 years as an internal and external consultant to large corporations including National Australia Bank, ANZ Bank and Accenture as well as smaller for-profit, government and non-profit organisations. Her experience ranges from organisational development focusing on leadership and culture to strategy and business performance analysis.

Having faced challenges as a quieter, Japanese female consultant, she has invested heavily in her personal and professional development over the last 15 years. She is passionate about empowering people and groups of people with less voice to build their personal power to have a voice. Her passion is underpinned by her belief that these quieter and marginalised voices are critical for individuals and organisations to succeed in a changing, volatile world and for solving the biggest challenges in the world today.
